SYDNEY OLYMPIC TO MAKE IT TWO.....

We were spot-on about Sydney Olympic returning to the 'winners list' in Round 2 of the Telechoice Premier League. And after this weekend the Blues will be two-from-three.

Sydney Olympic should beat Bonnyrigg- although the score will be a lot closer than what many are thinking.

BERRIES IN A TOUGH ONE.....

As for the West Sydney Berries, they travel to Cromer Park to take on a very tough Manly United.

It's never easy across the bridge and being without captain Kotsopoulos will make it even more difficult for the Berries. However, the Berries showed tenaciousness against Penrith last weekend when they came from behind twice to draw 2-2 in the end.

A draw may not be too much of a surprise.

SEX, DRUNKS AND THE NRL!

More sexual assault allegations.....
More drunkenness for all the world to see.....

Welcome to yet another NRL season!

What's new for the code that is yet again SMASHED by serious allegations that have once again rocked its very foundations.

So much so, that the NRL hierarchy have pulled their new NRL ad for 2009 off air even before any of us really got to have a good look at it!

Former NSW Origin coach Phil Gould is continuing his crusade to stop players from drinking during the season... good luck!

The players are destroying the image and credibility of the game. Who on earth would want to sponsor such a wayward competition I just cannot understand.

Again this past week we have the game of rugby league rocked to the core by allegations of sexual assault and another player on a drunken rampage down in Goulburn!

The damage to the game is immeasurable!

The NRL has not only cancelled its 2009 ad, but that the "Sun Herald" too could not place its Footy Guide in the paper last weekend because it too heavily featured individuals emroiled in this current turmoil.

The damage has been done.

NRL officialdom is again left scratching its head at the sheer stupidity of these talented but apparently dumb young men.

EURO 2016 HOSTS DOWN TO FOUR

There are now only four final bidders left to host the 2016 European Soccer Championship- France, Italy and Turkey and a joint proposal from Sweden-Norway.

The timetable gives the 2016 host six years to prepare for the tournament – one more year than Poland and Ukraine have been granted in their troubled buildup to Euro 2012.

The 2016 tournament will feature 24 teams after UEFA decided last year to increase the field from 16.

UEFA requires the 2016 host to provide nine stadiums each holding at least 30,000 spectators. A 50,000-capacity stadium is needed for the final.

Each of the four bids intends to use the tournament as a catalyst for major investment in building and upgrading stadiums.

Stadium standards in France and Italy have fallen behind countries like England, Germany and Spain since France hosted the World Cup in 1998 and Italy staged it in 1990.

France hosted the Euros in 1984 when current UEFA president Michel Platini captained the home team to the first of its two European titles.

Italy staged the eight-team tournament in 1980, after the finals were expanded into a single-venue event with a group stage and knockout matches for the first time. Italy was a strong favorite to be chosen as host for Euro 2012 but was beaten in the final vote.

The bid competition between Italy and France will continue one of soccer's most intense rivalries. Italy beat France on penalties in the final of the 2006 World Cup.

Sweden hosted the Euros in 1992 when just four stadiums were needed. It was the last time only eight teams took part before the tournament was doubled in size to 16 at Euro 1996.

Norway has never hosted a European championship and has qualified only once. It was knocked out in the group stage of the 2000 tournament played in the Netherlands and Belgium.

Turkey would also be hosting a European championship for the first time. Last year the Turkish government offered to host Euro 2012 if Poland and Ukraine were unable to meet their deadlines to complete preparations.

BETEZY-BET-OF-THE-WEEK

Hi Punters,

Last week was a bit up and down but the horse WANTED which I tipped is definitely John O'Shea's main chance for the Golden Slipper and will only improve after the run.

Fravashi's run in Melbourne last week has to be forgiven as it was a leader's biased track and it tried to lead from the front which is not his go. He is better suited coming from off the pace. Stick with him.

This week looks like a smorgasboard of winners!

Suggested bets:

Randwick Strade Stakes
- Bhutane Dane
Randwick Sweet Embrace Stakes- Horizons
Melb race 5- Ista Kareem
Melb race 6- 2 Prima Nova
Melb race 8- Wilander
Melb race 9- Pinnacles
