ΒΙΟΓΡΑΦΙΚΟ

George Manecas was born in Aroniathika on the island of kythera on the 27th September 1910. He had entered the 100th year of his life, sadly he did not see it out. George's early life was hampered by the great depression and an industrial revolution that left small islands like Kythera starving and poor. Family life forced George to start work early in his teens not allowing him the education that he yearned. This unconditional mandate on his life would be the driver that would decades later see his relentless attention to pursuing his children's education and want for their opportunity to prosper. This unselfish nature to want for others was a cornerstone of Georges personality. He would be known for this during all his years on this earth; From his sacrifice for close family by denying his education, to continually sending money back home to his mother whilst in Australia to raising his nieces like a father in their poorest years, to sponsoring an abundant number of other Kytherians to Australia, down to treating strangers he just met as family; George was always one to give with no pause or pre-emptive thought to justify quid pro quo. He spent time in the Greek army as an artillery sergeant commanding his troops from a horse. The youngest of three George followed his brother's immigration to Australia in 1937. His Australian early years were spent working throughout country towns from Coonabarabran to Nowra. He like most Kytherian immigrants practiced in small mixed businesses like take aways and milk bars. He took over businesses that were not doing well and turned them around through hard work and good customer relations. In 1953 he returned to Kythera met Irene Samios, married her, returned to Australia and got her pregnant with their first child Maria; all in the space of a year. Together they raised raised three fine children Maria, Patricia and Peter, and they are survived by 7 grandchildren, Michael, lianna, Nicola, Jake, jasmine, George and Irinaios. George lost his beloved wife Irene to cancer in 2002. This loss affected him deeply and he discovered a deeper and more devoted love for her after she was gone. He spent his final years writing and publishing poetry about her. If George was with us today, and you asked him how does one become a successful centurion? He would probably say: -Give when you don't need to- -expect more from yourself- -never be satisfied with the milestone you just reached- -eat simple and unprocessed food- -don't abuse your body with vigorous exercises- -keep your mind and body active by reading and walking every day- -deal with stress by sharing it with those closest to you.
