CITY OF SYDNEY

Ticks stop for Town Hall clock

The historic clock on Sydney Town Hall has stopped chiming for up to eight weeks while the clock's 1880s winding gears are repaired.

A recent City of Sydney inspection found urgent safety repairs were required to allow the clock to continue to function.

The iconic clock will continue to keep time throughout the duration of the repairs.

Lord Mayor Clover Moore MP said the repairs will ensure the clock will continue to chime for years to come.

"Sydney Town Hall is the civic heart of our city and is an iconic heritage building," Ms Moore said.

"Workers, residents and visitors are all used to hearing Town Hall's hourly chimes and this work will ensure the clock can continue to chime for decades to come."

The Sydney Town Hall clock was made by British clockmakers Gillett, Bland & Co and dates to the 1880s. The clock's chimes can be heard throughout the Sydney CBD every hour and quarter hour.

The repairs to the Sydney Town Hall clock are part of an ongoing five year upgrade of the building.

Stage one of the project was completed in February this year, with the building officially reopening to the public in March after a $40 million essential services, internal safety and fire services upgrade.

Updates from Bulldog Theatre Company

Hi,
I hope you're all well. Our season in Melbourne went extremely well and as a result, we will be going back in a few months.

Meanwhile, our Sydney season is coming June 10th to June 20th. On Saturday 12th June Greece is playing their first World Cup game. We have moved forward the time of the show to 7pm and the game will be screened live on the big screen at the Factory theatre following the show. Food will be provided so it should be a fun night of theatre and soccer - remembering, the play is set in 2004 when Greece won the European Cup. Please pass this email on to friends who will be watching the game. Perhaps its a good motivator for wives/and or girlfriends to coerce their partners to the theatre.

In any case, thanks for all your email well-wishes for Melbourne. Hope to see you at the theatre. When: Thursday June 10th - Sunday June 20th
