SOCCEROOS- GENERATION NEXT!

A 'golden era' for the Socceroos has ended. It remains to be seen if we see the likes of Tim Cahill, Harry Kewell, Lucas Neill and Mark Schwarzer & Co. again. The time could be ripe for "Generation Next" to be given their go and spearhead Australia's 2014 World Cup campaign.

The World Cup Africa camp may have unveiled a group of mid-20s players who may have what it takes. The two most obvious are Brett Holman and Carl Valeri- who have gone from being fringe players to a duo the Socceroos can build a campaign around after their excellent World Cup efforts in South Africa.

Outgoing coach Pim Verbeek said these younger players who were part of the squad or involved in the pre-World Cup training camp would have much to offer the Socceroos in the future. "There's absolutely talent there," Verbeek said. "When I see what the young players did during the camp, players like James Holland, Shane Lowry, Rhys Williams, Dario Vidosic, Mark Milligan- they are good players, talented players who work as hard as this generation at the moment.

Of course there will many other up-and-comers too in the years to follow. Names to look out for and ones who could become household names in their own right could be Rhys Williams, Dario Vidosic or Tommy Oar. Then there's also ex-Melbourne Victory goalkeeper Mitch Langerak who is starring with German giants Borussia Dortmund at the tender age of 21.

But it's true that "Generation Next" will certainly have a hard act to follow. Australia has now qualified for two World Cups in a row.

Their 'opening act' will initially be an

Asian Cup campaign beginning in January 2011, followed by the long and arduous World Cup qualification road which is set to begin in 2012.

Time will tell if they will be able to step up to the mark.

NSW PREMIER LEAGUE NEWS...

Well it looks as though we COULD be right about the "Top 5" already being decided.

The current "Top 5" clubs look set for finals action later this year.

Only APIA could have a say whether or not this happens. The Tigers have been in excellent form and their 2-0 victory over Sydney Olympic last weekend and they are outside the "5" only because of goal-difference. Who would have thought they could come back so well after occupying the bottom positions early in the year?

In other news:

Bonnyrigg looks to have a mortgage on the Minor Premiership now having skipped away by 5 point lead at the top of the ladder.

Sydney United, Marconi and Blacktown City continue to fight out the all-important "Top 3" positions.

Sutherland and now APIA (who would EVER have believed that!), are in a battle for the remaining spot at the moment.

Don't underestimate the Bankstown City Lions either. Sure they may be a couple of wins away BUT... you just never know with them.

As for the rest, they may as well pack up and start planning for next year.

Rockdale City has had a fairly decent first year back- but they are not quite safe just yet.

South Coast I am sure will also be happy to have survived the drop this year..

Sydney Olympic are for mine, THE BIGGEST DISAPPOINTMENT in 2010. They have returned to second last spot once again.

Manly United will also be happy to regroup and get back to its winning ways in 2011.

As for the Berries?

What can you say?

They still remain LAST on the Club Championship table- 24 points away from Manly.

Coach Steve Karavatakis remains winless- he has still NOT WON A GAME, as the Berries remain in LAST spot on the Premiership ladder as well for yet another week.

BERRIES vs OLYMPIC?

Which brings us finally to this weekend's GREEK DERBY game between the West Sydney Berries and Sydney Olympic.

The Berries vs Sydney Olympic.

Last vs second last!

The fight for the "wooden koutala" is on in earnest!

Both clubs have nothing left to play for this year- other than pride that is.

And in games between these two teams pride sure counts for plenty!

Sydney Olympic has had a horrendous time beating the Berries since they returned to the NSW Premier League. The Berries have over this period of time relished beating their more fancied brothers- something they have managed to do in style over many memorable recent clashes.

However in 2010 so far, it has been Sydney Olympic who has easily accounted for the Berries in Round One at Belmore- beating them 2-0.

Can they do it again at the Athletic Centre and retain bragging rights over the Berries?

Time will tell...

THE SAD TALE...

Here is the latest NSW Premier League Table from which the bottom placed club (currently the West Sydney Berries) WILL BE RELEGATED:

Bonnyrigg	279
Syd United	254
Blacktown	252
Sutherland	230
Marconi	229
Bankstown	193
Apia	193
Sth Coast	162
Syd Olympic	161
Rockdale	146
Manly United	141
BERRIES	117
