He is considered to be Greece's most popular artist of the last decade. On Sunday, he performed at the Sydney Harbour last Sunday, to catch his free live performance as part of the festival. It was a great opportunity to experience first-hand why this affable young man is so popular in his own country and of all ages.

As soon as Michaelis Hatzigeorgidis walked on to the stage, the crowd erupted in a cascade of shouts, cheers and claps. Braving the heat, he was visibly touched by the response of the crowd, thank everyone and then he proceeded in expressing the emotions that overwhelmed him by waving.

With a set list that comprised of selections of his own band's music and the illustrious Greek canon of music, Hatzigeorgidis had the crowd singing. The first notes of "Heria Psila" filled the air, the roar of the crowd was
